Guidance Notes on the Use of the Standard Request for Application for Selection of Individual Consultants (National)

These guidance notes have been prepared by the CPTU to assist a Client in the preparation, using the Standard Request for Application (SRFA), for procurement of Individual Consultants (National). The Client should also refer to the Public Procurement Act 2006 (Act No 24 of 2006), and the Public Procurement Rules 2008, issued to supplement the Act available on CPTU's website: www.cptu.gov.bd/. All concerned are advised to refer to the aforementioned Act and Rules while participating in any selection process of Consultants.

Individual Consultants shall be employed in accordance with Section 38 of the Public Procurement Act 2006 and Rule 112 & Rule 104(d) of the Public Procurement Rule 2008 for assignments for which the qualifications and experience of the individual are the overriding requirements and no team of staff and no additional professional support are required.

This document shall be used when a Procuring Entity (the Client) wishes to select an Individual Consultant (National) for assignments for which the qualifications and experience of the individual are the overriding requirement, for which remuneration is being determined on the basis of the time actually spent by the Consultant in carrying out the services.

Time-based Contracts are recommended when the Scope of the Services cannot be established with sufficient precision, or the duration and quantity of Services depends on variables that are beyond the control of the Consultant, or the output required of the consultants is difficult to assess.

Consultant's remuneration is based on (i) agreed unit rates for the Consultant multiplied by the actual time spent by him/her in executing the assignment, and (ii) reimbursable expenses using actual expenses and/or agreed unit prices. This type of Contract requires the Client to closely supervise consultants and to be involved in the daily execution of the assignment.

SRFA (PS4) has been designed to suit the particular needs of procurement within Bangladesh, and has four (4) Sections, of which Section 1: Information to the Applicants and the Contract Agreement in Section 4 must not be altered or modified under any circumstances.

The Client addresses its specific needs through the Section 2: Terms of Reference (TOR). The way in which an Applicant expresses his/her interest is by completion and submission of the Application Forms in Section 3.

Guidance notes in brackets and italics are provided for both the Client and the Applicants and as such the Client should carefully decide what notes need to remain and what other guidance notes might be required to assist the Applicant in preparing its Application submission; so as to minimize the inept Selection process.

SRFA (PS4), when properly completed will provide all the information that an Individual Consultant (National) needs in order to prepare and submit an Application. This should provide a sound basis on which the Client can fairly, transparently and accurately carry out an evaluation process on the application submitted by the Individual Consultant.

SRFA(PS4) duly tailored may also be used for the purpose of Single Source Selection Method.

The following briefly describes the Section of SRFA (PS4) and how a Client should use these when preparing a particular request for Applications.

Section 1: Information to the Applicants

This Section provides relevant information to help Consultants prepare their Applications. Information is also provided for submission, opening, and evaluation of Applications and on the award of Contract.

This Section also contains the criteria for selection of suitable Applicant
The text of the clauses in this section shall not be modified.

Section 2. Terms of Reference

This section defines clearly the Objectives, Goals, and Scope of the assignment, and provides background information (including a list of existing relevant studies and basic data) to enable the Individual Consultant to clearly understand the assignment. This section lists the Services and surveys that may be necessary to carry out the assignment and the expected outputs (for example, reports, data, maps, surveys); it also clearly defines the Client's and Consultants' respective responsibilities.

Section 3. Application Forms

This section provides the standard format that permits the requested information to be presented in a clear, precise and readily available manner and allows the Client to readily understand and evaluate Applications in accordance with the pre-disclosed criteria. The completed forms will indicate details of the Applicant's qualifications and experience best suited to the specific assignment.

Section 4. Contract Agreement Forms

The Form of Contract Agreement which, once completed and signed by the Client and the Consultant clearly defines the Client's and Consultants' respective responsibilities. The Annexes to the formal Contract include a Description of the Services, the Reporting Schedule and Cost estimates of Services.

BACKGROUND AND GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Bangladesh is one of the world's most densely populated countries, with its people overflowing into a delta of rivers that empties into the Bay of Bengal. Bangladesh has nearly 164 million inhabitants on a landmass of 147,570 square kilometers, a population density of more than 1,000 people per square kilometer. Despite human population, the country has a relative density of livestock population well above the averages for many other countries of the world. Bangladesh is entirely situated within one of the four global hotspots for emergence of infectious diseases. Excluding city-states, Bangladesh is the most densely populated country in the world. It has an expected population growth of 5.7% and GDP growth of 49% by 2020, making Bangladesh one of the fastest growing economies in Asia. Livestock is a key component of the agricultural economy of Bangladesh. The contribution of the livestock sector to overall GDP was 1.84% in 2012-13 and agricultural GDP in 2013-14 was 14.08% (www.dls.gov.bd). Even with its modest share of GDP, livestock sector contributes 20 percent of rural employment, 5 percent of foreign earning through export as well as serves an essential role as a source of protein and provision of food security. Livestock resources play an important role in the sustenance of landless people, livelihood options for the rural poor families and are potentially important for poverty reduction. Current Livestock population is estimated to comprise 25.7 million cattle, 0.83 million buffaloes, 14.8 million goats, 1.9 million sheep, 118.7 million chicken and 34.1 million ducks. The density of livestock population per acre of cultivable land is 7.37 (<http://en.banglapedia.org>). Livestock health mostly affected due to infection by bacteria, virus, or a parasite. The major constraints of the growing livestock industry of Bangladesh are transboundary animal diseases such as food and mouth diseases (FMD), peste des petits ruminants (PPR), newcastle disease (ND), haemorrhagic septicaemia (HS) as well as zoonotic diseases like highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI), anthrax, rabies, leptospirosis, bovine tuberculosis (BTB), brucellosis, Rotavirus, and Japanese encephalitis (JE). Investigation also has revealed the presence of more than 100 pests and parasites in the country. Indiscriminate use of antimicrobials leading to antimicrobial resistance (AMR) is also becoming major threat for this promising sector.

In Bangladesh, especially in livestock & poultry rising, there is no tier-wise restriction of antimicrobials prescription as anyone, including drug sellers, can prescribe/suggest antimicrobials (AM) and they are available over the counter without prescription. Easy access also led to use as prophylaxis and growth promoter. Furthermore, long-term exposure to sub-therapeutic antimicrobial agents provides selective pressure, which might change the sensitivity of bacteria to antimicrobial agents. Most AM use is without the benefit of culture and sensitivity testing. Thus, the food animal production sector of Bangladesh may be prompting bacteria to develop resistance to the highest degree. Moreover, fecal waste from food animals treated with antimicrobials, which is commonly used as fertilizer and fish feed without being composted, is implicated in environmental contamination and spill-over of resistant bacteria to the environment and humans. Very recent study conducted by BLRI has found that about 78.2% salmonella and 75.1% E. coli O157 in the food value chain and environment have a multidrug resistance (MDR) phenotype (resistance to ≥ 2 antibiotics). Nonetheless, surveillance on AMR for rational antimicrobial use in the animal sector is yet to be well established. Enforcement of policies in the animal sector is weak and needs further strengthening.

Bacteria and other microbes evolve in response to their environment and inevitably develop mechanisms to resist being killed by antimicrobial agents. For many decades, the problem was manageable as the growth of resistance was slow and the pharmaceutical industry continued to create new antibiotics. Over the past decade, however, this problem has become a crisis. The evolution of AMR is occurring at an alarming rate and is outpacing the development of new countermeasures capable of thwarting infections in humans. This situation threatens patient care, economic growth, public health, agriculture, economic security, and national security.

Antibacterial-resistant strains and species sometimes referred to as "superbugs", open the door to treatment failure for even the most common pathogens, raises health care costs, and increases the number, severity and duration of infections. AMR infections currently claim at least 50,000 lives each year across Europe and the US alone, with many hundreds of thousands more dying in other areas of the world. But reliable estimates of the true burden are scarce. There is considerable variation globally in the patterns of AMR, with different countries often experiencing different major problems. Despite this and in contrast to some health issues, AMR is a problem that should concern every country irrespective of its level of income. This crisis threatens patient care, economic growth, public health, agriculture, economic security, and national security. The O'Neill review estimates that 300 million people will die as a result of drug resistance during the next 35 years. This would have a catastrophic effect on the world's economy, reducing global GDP by 2–3-5% more than it should otherwise have been in 2050.

Public health laboratories provide essential services including disease and outbreak detection, emergency response, environmental monitoring, and disease surveillance. State and local public health laboratories can serve as a focal point for a national system, through their core functions for human, veterinary and food safety including disease prevention, control, and surveillance; integrated data management; reference and specialized testing; laboratory oversight; emergency response; public health research; training and education; and partnerships and communication.

Bangladesh has strong laboratory capabilities at the national level, with extensive testing abilities for human and animal health. There is good coverage of the core tests that cover the IHR mandatory diseases, and defined standard operation procedures (SOPs) for this testing. However, clinical testing is used more for routine programmatic data than for surveillance. There is an opportunity to strengthen the incorporation of routine clinical testing in the broader surveillance system.

Animal health sectors are not sufficiently capable to perform diagnosis all major diseases from the field to national levels. While BLRI has two state of art laboratories (NRL-AI, SARC PPR lab), biosafety practices of the routine diagnosis and farm animal diseases diagnostic laboratories along with Zoonoses and food safety laboratories are not sufficient. Sustained funding for maintenance of laboratories and training including biosafety and biosecurity are major constraints to conduct higher level diagnostic test. Laboratory capacity should be revived to identify and address gaps. Quality management system (QMS) and Accreditation for laboratories should be expanded.

Objectives:

Overall

Supporting the implementation of the GHSA/IHRs using a One Health strategy, this proposal, will further strengthen prevention, detection and response activities related to emerging infectious diseases. Building on past successes and lessons learned in zoonotic disease and AMR, the overall goal of this proposal is to prevent, detect and respond to biological threats (regardless of cause). Activities conducted under this cooperative agreement will focus on three strategy areas defined by the FOA and GHSA:

- (a) Prevent Antimicrobial Resistance,

- (b) Prevent Zoonotic Disease, and
- (c) Strengthen National Laboratory Systems
